

Flush fittings and hatches accentuate the Glider's sleekness and speed.

> Glider > SEDA

Seda says: "With a narrow beam and razor bow, the Glider consistently delivers top finishes in competition. It quickly accelerates to hull speed and planes rapidly without stern squat. Ideal for extended touring, the Glider delivers safety through speed. Intermediate and advanced paddlers will enjoy a whole new level of performance kayaking."

Pros: Indents on the sides in front of the cockpit so hands don't hit the boat when using a high-angle paddle stroke. Good contours for thighs and knees. Kudos for both initial and secondary stability. A fast and clean kayak with good forward speed and excellent tracking.

Cons: The front part of the seat extended a little too far out and pressed uncomfortably on those of us who don't have small thighs.

Have to put some oomph into your edging to get the boat to turn; a gentle lean won't do it.

Bottom Line: Seda hit the nail on the head with the Glider.
